MISTER B KNOWS HOW TO LEAVE A MARK!

CELEBRATING 25 YEARS OF FREEDOM, FUN & FETISH

• by Marco Hohl •

25 years ago, on March 2 1994, our founding father Wim Bos opened the doors of the very first Mister B store in the Warmoesstraat in Amsterdam. Fast-forward to 2019 and you can visit our stores in Amsterdam, Berlin and Antwerp and you can find our products in shops all over the world. To celebrate our 25th birthday we spoke with five icons of the fetish community about Mister B's impact on the scene and the mark we have (literally) left on so many of you – for which we are very thankful!

According to Richard Bolk, owner of barbershop Cuts and Curls and long-time leather man, Mister B was the first of a new wave of gay fetish companies that started their businesses in Amsterdam in the mid-nineties: “It was Mister B, Black Body, followed by myself and BDSM hotel The Black Tulip. People were less prude and everyone seemed to be interested in fetish at the time. They came to Amsterdam for the weekend just to have a little bit of sex. I remember going to the opening of Mister B with my first long-term boyfriend. Some of the stuff they sold back then reminded me of the gear they had at RoB – which isn't strange because Wim Bos used to work for them – but they also had a lot of new designs. It struck me how open and accessible the place was. Up until then fetish and leather stores were hidden behind black blinds and double doors, but Mister B had an enormous see through shopping window.”

This openness was exactly what the original Mister B, Wim Bos, was going for. “To me it has always been important to be open to the outside world about who we are and about our sexuality,” Bos explains. “I wanted people on the street to be able to look inside. And I wanted our customers in the store to be proud of themselves and show what they were doing. 25 years ago that was a revolutionary idea.” From the very beginning Mister B was much more than a regular fetish store. Of course Bos wanted to sell sexy clothing and the kinkiest toys, but he also wanted Mister B to be a company that supports the community. Bos continues: “Something I cherish a lot is a black and white photograph of Rob Meijer and Dai Evans that Erwin Olaf took. It hung in my office for years and I looked at that picture everyday. Rob Meijer was the founder of our competitor RoB and Dai was his boyfriend. They were dear and sweet friends of mine and beautiful people. Both died of HIV at the beginning of the nineties. They lived in their store and were inviting to anyone, sometimes too much. It would happen that employees took all the food from their fridge and they would have nothing to eat, even though they were very sick at one point. That picture of Rob and Dai inspired me. I wanted to be more businesslike than them, but just like them I wanted to be there for our community. I wanted to promote emancipation. I wanted people to be proud of who they are. Rob and Dai inspired me to strive for these goals through Mister B.”

• Former location Mister B Amsterdam •

• Mister B Berlin •

• Photoshoot Erwin Olaf •

Aforementioned Dutch photographer Erwin Olaf is known for his enormous and artistic body of work, which includes the official portraits of King Willem-Alexander and Queen Máxima of The Netherlands. The world-renowned artist also did two photo shoots for Mister B, including one in 2013 to celebrate our 20th anniversary. He packed up his equipment and travelled to the legendary leather bar The Boots in Antwerp for a series of photos about cruising leather men. Olaf: “I wanted to work with Mister B because I support what the company stands for; its liberal mentality speaks to me. For a shoot like this casting is key. What I do is nothing more than registering the talent of the models and making the atmosphere relaxed. Usually I’m the most prude one on set,” he laughs. “There was almost no room to move at The Boots, so it really came down to precision work. Not just for me, but for everyone involved. I almost don’t allow anything during a shoot. You can stand in one spot, move a little bit to the left or right, and that’s it. The attitude of your models is really important. You do it together and if it works out you get a great photo, like the one where all these boys are standing in a hallway pissing.” Olaf likes working with Mister B because there’s always humour involved, which also goes for his own side projects. Olaf: “One year during the Milkshake festival in Amsterdam I came up with a game called ‘cockring throwing’. For a couple of euros participants got three rings and you had to throw them over a big assortment of dildos in front of you. Mister B sponsored the dildos and the money we raised went to a charity that works hard to prevent gay kids from getting bullied. Unfortunately some of the dildos got stolen during the day,” he laughs loudly at this.

“Mister B means a lot to us,” says Jeroen van Lievenoogen, executive director of the Leather Pride Belgium and editor-in-chief of gay fetish magazine Alphatribe. “Without Mister B, or more specific without Wim Bos, Leather Pride Belgium wouldn’t exist today. Wim has advised us throughout the years. He taught us for example how to maintain good relationships with partners and advertisers. But most importantly he helped us after we had a catastrophic year with a lot of snow and ice. We suffered heavy financial losses. Wim came to Antwerp and told us to keep going with the event. He guaranteed us a certain amount of sponsoring so we could continue and he promised us help if we needed it. That's why the Leather Pride Belgium is still alive and kicking. We're very grateful to him." Van Lievenoogen is happy that Mister B opened a store in Antwerp in December 2014. "It made our scene stronger and it gave us some more importance. Two years before we had said goodbye to another fetish store, Plan B, so Mister B filled that void and gave our community a new boost."

• Mister B Amsterdam •

Mister B gave a similar kick-start to Germany's capital at the turn of the century. According to Onno Tang, our retail manager and former manager of the Berlin store, our arrival turned the city's Schöneberg district into 'Europe's fetish epicentre': "We were the first real fetish store in the neighbourhood. Today there are approximately 15 or 16 similar stores in an area of 300 square meters. Mister B Berlin is special because it attracts customers from all over the world. It's 70% tourists and 30% locals. There are a lot of men coming over for parties like Folsom and Easter Berlin. The customer base is pretty hardcore. It's all about BDSM and leather. This makes the scene a bit more rough and tough. As a leather man, going to Berlin always feels like coming home. I love the atmosphere in Schöneberg and especially the Motzstrasse where our store is located. It's always sexy and 'gemütlich.'"

MRB

25 YEARS

MISTER B 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Amsterdam Barber Richard Bolk also praises Mister B for its effect on the Dutch fetish community: “Mister B’s openness made BDSM, leather and sex in general more accessible and acceptable for discussion. And it gave people who aren’t full on ‘leather queens’ the possibility to discover their fetish side. Leather to me is not a religion. You need to pick what you and your partner find exciting, not all of us get an erection from looking like Tom of Finland. I appreciate Mister B’s sense of community. They have sponsored everything and everyone in Amsterdam’s LGBT spectrum. From drag queens to Mister Leather, from puppy competitions to the AIDS Foundation and from the Kink Academy to the protest against the persecution of gay Chechnyans. Mister B clearly takes a stand unlike other companies.” Looking to the future Bolk has one piece of advice he would like to give to the crew at Mister B: “Keep being innovative. That’s the talent you have had for the last 25 years and I think that’s what will make you stand out. Mister B has a feel for new trends and for the desires of young kinksters and people new to the scene. Mister B has the balls to think out of the box and I respect that.”

In 2017 Wim Bos stepped down as the owner of Mister B. He put his company in the capable hands of Nelson Jorge Sousa da Cunha and his enthusiastic team. Like Richard Bolk, Wim Bos hopes that Mister B will find a way to constantly renew itself: “We live in an ever-changing world and we should always find a way to change with it. We have to come up with new ideas and products ahead of time. What do our customers find exciting five years from now? What are their wishes? What do we need to produce? That’s how you survive! We brought together a group of people that has fresh ideas for our future customer base. I sincerely hope that Mister B will keep offering new things and that we continue to support our community in other ways. We should be social. We should help people in their development. We should be conscious of the society we live in and we should be critical of it when necessary. I’ve been that way all my life and I hope Mister B will continue to be like that as well.”

WORLDPRIDE NEW YORK CELEBRATES 50 YEARS OF STONEWALL

• Written by: Marco Hohl •

This June New York City Pride welcomes the world! For the first time New York will be hosting WorldPride to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall Riots. Wings takes a short trip through LGBT history and puts a spotlight on the events you should take part in this June, if you decide to join the festivities in the Big Apple.

The Stonewall Riots – for those of you who have never heard of them – are generally seen as the starting point of the modern day fight for equal rights for queer people. But before we'll get into them we need to travel back in time a little further, to put things into perspective.

There was a time, not that long ago, that homosexuality didn't exist and neither did heterosexuality. It was not until the 1850's that the concept of differing sexualities and what we now call 'gender identities' started taking shape in Europe. Five decades later, in 1897, German scientist Magnus Hirschfeld established the world's first LGBT rights organization in Berlin. This 'humanitarian committee' tried to explain our existence and stick up for our rights through science and research, until the Nazis destroyed most of its groundbreaking work in 1933. If you want to know more about this mostly forgotten history, we recommend you read the eye-opening book Gay Berlin by Robert Beachy – published in 2014 – and watch the (unfortunately not entirely historically accurate) 2015 film The Danish Girl.

Let's skip 30 years and hop on over to another continent: it's the 1960's in the United States and a new generation is trying to break free from 'old-fashioned' ideas about sex and sexuality. The focus is mainly on heterosexual lovemaking, but gay men and their bed habits are also getting more attention – not necessarily in a good way. Life Magazine from July 27th 1964 for example features an article about 'the secret world of homosexuals' that is supposedly growing 'bolder and broader'. Gay life is 'sad and often sordid' according to the author. There are black and white pictures of faceless men dressed in leather in an underground cruising bar in San Francisco and of a gay man being handcuffed and arrested by police officers in Hollywood for 'soliciting'.

The article explains to the readers that homosexuals are 'openly admitting and even flaunting their deviation' in cities like New York, San Francisco, Chicago and Los Angeles. That they are 'building a society of their own' because they are 'rejected by the straight world'. On the one hand the piece seems to be somewhat sympathetic to the gay cause, on the other it is filled with prejudice and fear. Still the article manages to capture the struggle gay men are facing, including 'anti homosexual police operations', faking straight life and discrimination within their own community. It also talks in depth about the discussion (and reluctance) of decriminalising sex between men in certain US states.

Almost 5 years later the Stonewall Riots take place. Early in the morning of June 28 1969 New York City police raid the Stonewall Inn, a popular underground gay and lesbian bar in Greenwich Village. Tired of the ongoing police brutality, done with being seen as sexual perverts and sick of being marginalized by society, community members fight back. On the forefront of these uprisings are black and Latino transvestites and transsexuals, butch dykes and femme queens.

The riots, fuelled by emotion, go on for multiple nights. They forge the New York queer scene into a community and lead to the formation of two local gay activist organizations within 6 months. In the following years gay rights organizations are formed all across the US and in countries around the world. And, also important to note, exactly a year after these events, the Stonewall Riots are commemorated with the very first pride marches in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and many other cities. Today similar pride events are held annually all over the world, often around the end of June in honour of the Stonewall Riots. If you want to know more about the impact of Stonewall and about one of its most famous faces you should watch the 2017 documentary The Life and Death of Marsha P. Johnson (available on Netflix) and the moving 2010 documentary Stonewall Uprising that features interviews with eye witnesses.

That's it for our short queer history lesson. Let's take a look to the near future to some of our favourite events during WorldPride New York!

MEET THE GORILLA ROGAN RICHARDS

MELBOURNE

• Written by: Marco Hohl •

Wings has a hard on and a soft spot for porn Godzilla Rogan Richards. This dom top from down under is a gay men's wet dream - at least if you dream about being ravaged by a hairy muscle monster with a wicked smile, reeking of body odour and masculinity. Aside from that he's smart, outspoken and he possesses a sense of humour as big as his biceps.

We talked to a bare-chested Rogan having 'brekkie' in his Melbourne home about important stuff like porn, macrophileia, gorillas and of course flexing.

Rogan, thank you for talking to us this early! People who watch your porn know you are 'all about the flex'. What is 'the flex' exactly?

"I'm kind of known for flexing while I'm fucking guys. Technically it's that, but 'it's all about the flex' has also become my slogan and an attitude. It's about being who you are, having fun, not giving a fuck about everyone else, being confident and making the most of life."

Mister B gets a kick out of discovering new fetishes. On your Instagram account you posted something about macrophileia. Can you tell us more about that?

"Yeah, macrophileia is the sexual fetish of giants; of someone who is oversized. I think it's more popular in the heterosexual community with men fantasizing about huge women like in the movie Attack of the 50 Foot Woman. The gays have King Kong and Godzilla. I have a very dedicated, small cult following when it comes to gay macrophileia. There's a guy who sent me a box with toy trains and busses for me to smash and toy soldiers for me to eat. I haven't filmed it yet because I've been travelling all year but I wrote a short story for it.

I put fetishes into two categories. The first category consists of kinks that fully turn me on. Things that are purely animalistic like fucking, fisting and fighting. Then there's stuff like macrophileia, stomping and even pissing, where I am not that turned on by it but it amuses me sexually - if that makes any sense. Macrophileia caters more to the kid in me. It makes me believe I'm huge. I usually do cam shows where I talk into the camera and grow into a giant by lowering the camera angle. And then suddenly I'm standing over the viewer and flexing. 'Raaaaaaaaaaaar!' (he mimics the sound of a monster) And I say things like 'with every flex I get 500 meters bigger'. (he distorts his voice to sound like a giant and starts laughing) It's crazy! The fans love it!

I'm a person who always has commentary in his head. While I'm saying one thing I'm thinking 'well that sounds a bit silly' or 'am I doing this right? What do I do now? How many more worlds can I eat?' At one point during a cam show I was like: 'Fuck, I'm getting too big. I've already eaten everything. What's left? I'm gonna be bigger than the universe soon. Then what do I do?'" (he cracks up at this)

Why did you get into porn?

“This is a long answer. Are you ready? Ten years ago I was a personal trainer and I was trying to become a filmmaker. A friend from the States who happened to have frequent flyer points invited me to come over and hang out. I ended up in Los Angeles and a 3-week holiday turned into a 3-month stay. I started go-go dancing and that’s when I first realised I could make a living from my body. Before that I had a very sheltered catholic upbringing. Even when I was trying to become a filmmaker I was doing the whole starving artist thing. I worked in every job available to pay the bills - like a normal person - because I never realised I could earn money by flipping my dick out. In Los Angeles Dirty Tony’s approached me to do porn. I agreed to do it because I wanted to prove to myself that I could. I was always nervous about sex and shy about exploring my fetishes and fantasies. So I thought porn was a way to prove to myself that I was a sexual god. I did two films and they were a complete disaster. In the first one I couldn't get hard, but I managed to fake it well enough. In the second one I was supposed to top this straight skater dude. I couldn't get hard again so he fucked me. It's one of the few bottom films that have cursed my life. (he laughs) After that I swore I would never do porn again.”

But we all know that’s not what happened...

“No. So I got back to Australia and started working at a Virgin Mobile kiosk. My boss used to be an escort and he told me I should try it as well. I wanted to redeem myself from the films I had made so I did my first job as an escort. The guy asked me to flex while I was fucking him, which was great. It was the first time I got paid to do all the things I wanted to do, but had always been too scared to try. I kept escorting and that’s how I built up my sexual confidence. It was the birth of Rogan’s sexual side.

I never used to watch porn. I always masturbated to bodybuilding videos on YouTube and Strengthnet.com. One day I went on YouTube to jack off and I saw a flexing video of myself that I had posted before going to America. It had way more likes than similar videos, which made me want to post more. Eventually a friend built a website for me with my workout videos and he suggested posting other content and charging membership. I started doing solo jack offs and muscle worship videos and that led to me going back overseas again in 2012 to shoot a porn for Men at Play. This time I had nothing to prove. I only did it to gain a fan base for my website.”

Do you still work for other porn studios?

“Not since the relaunch of my site three years ago. I really enjoy having sex and filming myself while I’m fucking. I treat my job as a reality TV show. When it comes to porn I’m just exploring my sexuality in front of an audience. Because of my website I push myself into areas that otherwise I wouldn’t. I produce and write everything, including the blurbs. The first fifteen films I made are all about Rogan fucking a guy. But how many ways are there to describe that I fuck a guy that makes every film sound differently - when all I’m doing is fucking a guy? So I thought I need to do extra things. I need to wear leather. I need to fist someone. I need to piss on them. I need to shit on them. I’m gonna stomp a guy and torture him. Making this content has made me think of different ways to have sexual relations with other men. And of course I will always fuck in my films but at least there's something else happening as well."

It sounds to me you are trying out a lot of new things. Did any of these new kinks and fetishes stick with you?

"I was never into fisting when growing up but I did a fisting video recently and I really love it now. I tried electro but I didn't like it. I think there's a lot more to explore with my leather and bondage side. It's hard to find guys who want to do that sort of stuff with me. When they approach me to do a film I immediately ask what their fetishes are and they tell me 'fucking, pissing, spitting, this and that' but it's all pretty vanilla. It's a case of finding guys who are a bit more crazy and then letting me film them."

What really gets you going on a personal level?

"My boyfriend Rennie. (he says without hesitation) I kind of hit the jackpot with him. I've always been attracted to muscular guys and lighter skinned men. I like seeing my dark skin next to a lighter one. Especially since my dick is black. Seeing my cock enter a white ass is just really hot. Hair is good. Hairy armpits. Hairy legs. 'Stand there Ren so I can describe you better!' (he yells to his boyfriend) The good thing with my boyfriend is that he ticks all the boxes physically and he's a dirty pig ass well.

I will take a sexual attitude over someone who is good looking any day. Piggy guys turn me on. Being dirty is more important than having a six-pack. I'm also turned on by anonymous sex. If I go to a sauna I will probably fuck thirty guys who are average. It's the situation that makes me want to stick my dick in them and then toss them aside. So the environment gets me going as well. When someone looks at you in a dark alleyway and they grab your cock, you grab theirs and then throw them against the wall. That sort of stuff always gets me off."

Last but not least. You self identify as a gorilla. What does it all mean?

"I used to be a waxed physique model and I turned into a big hairy bodybuilder. So I went from jock to bear. But I didn't feel like I fit into the bear category. Bears are very passionate about their cuddly community. (he laughs) At the same time I have another fetish I haven't talked about. I'm into furrries. For me it's not about dressing up like an animal. It's about the artistic side of this fetish. There are these drawings you can find online of humanized animals fucking each other senseless with huge, fat dicks. It doesn't really translate into the real world. A lot of gay men have furry identities online. Mine used to be a werewolf, because that terrified me as a kid, a bull, since I fuck like one, and a gorilla, because one of my boyfriends started calling me that. Over the years the gorilla was the one that stuck. I've become a gorilla over time, just like I'm a master, a daddy and a sir. It's become a sexual term for hairy bodybuilders to me. You could say I'm an 'advocate' for this gay subculture." (he laughs loudly at this)

THIS IS EUROPE CALLING

• Written by: Chris Vincent •

We at Mister B pride ourselves on being facilitators of the fetish community, and through this magazine we can now shed a light on topics that we find interesting, curious and important for the scene. For this edition, we wanted to take a look across the pond, so I've been in touch with the current Mister Rubber Mexico, Joel Solis.

How present is the fetish scene in Mexico?

The fetish scene in Mexico is present, but there is still a lot of work to be done. Nowadays, more and more groups are appearing that have new and fresh ideas on how to make the fetish scene more appealing to younger guys. Also, the groups that have been around for a while are opening their doors for new ideologies and new people interested in different types of fetishes. However, this has been very recent and it needs to grow further. Also, thanks to social media, it has never been easier to get in touch with fellow fetishists around your area, and it has also given the opportunity to make bigger groups and communities. Meanwhile, there has also been an incredible advance of LGBT+ rights in Mexico the recent years. New generations are getting less stigmatized and tend to get more and more in touch with their sexuality and their fetishes. However, there is still work to be done, inside and outside the LGBT+ community to educate about the fetish culture, and every group is helping to make the fetish scene more open for everyone.

How did you get involved with fetish and kink?

I actually got involved without realizing I was getting involved with anything. I mean, usually everybody has a fetish without even realizing that it is one - until somebody else tells you that you have a fetish. For me, everything started with men wearing suits and having a beard. Oh God, every time I see one, I get so horny! However, I got into latex because of American Horror Story - when a rubber man appeared in an episode. I knew I had to get some rubber. It awoke something I didn't even know existed inside me. But I didn't know where to get one; or that there was even rubber fetishists like me around. Well, at least not until I got invited by a friend to help him in the Mr. Rubber Mexico contest. I didn't know what I was getting into. I was bored, and to be honest, a little bit depressed, so I said: "Fuck it, why not?" So I went with him - and it changed my life. When I was at the event, I got the chance to finally try a rubber suit and in that moment I loved it - the smell, the texture, the sound, how it made me feel. I used it briefly that night but I knew I had to wear more rubber. So I got in touch with the rubber community in Mexico and I found with them an amazing brotherhood with huge hearts and they welcomed me with open arms. And well, here I am now.

Where are the best places to visit?

Mexico is an amazing place to visit! You won't get enough of it. Of course Mexico City is enchanting, and the night scene in Mexico is fantastic; we have amazing bars, clubs, karaoke's, food, etc. As a fetishist, the place to visit in Mexico City is TOM'S Leather Bar. It is the only leather bar in Mexico City. There are some other bars like Nicho Bar, Vaquero,s Bar, Botas, El Almacen, where you can go dressed in leather or rubber, but they are not specifically leather or fetish bars. However I would recommend to check their calendars and look after the leather or fetish events at these bars, I really recommend all these events. We need more leather and fetish events, specially events to have play sessions, or places where people can go and experiment with their fetishes. Also, I would love to have some kind of mini FOLSOM here in Mexico City - We need one!

HOW TO BUCK-OFF WITH AN ANGEL

• Written by: Marco Hohl •

Buck Angel (56) is a legend. You might know this sexy hunk from his porn career, but he is so much more. He is a human rights activist, a motivational speaker, an entrepreneur and even an inventor. On November 23rd he visited the Mister B flagship store in Amsterdam for the launch of his new line of FTM (female to male) sex toys for trans men. Wings had the distinct honour to sit down with this inspirational man and talk about sex, gender and his positive outlook on life.

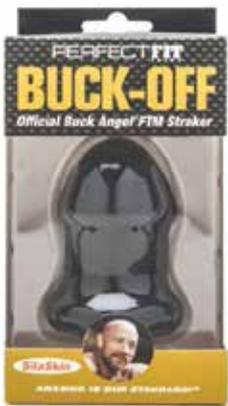

“I started doing porn nineteen years ago because I didn’t see a representation of myself. The Internet was still a new thing and pornography was way different. There were films with transgender women and chicks with dicks and there was shemale porn, but there were no videos featuring transsexual or transgender men. There was nothing. And then this idea popped up in my head: ‘Buck Angel, the man with a pussy’. A friend told me: ‘Dude! You have to do this, you are going to change the world!’ And I was like: ‘Change the world?’ I didn’t want to change the world man (he laughs). I just wanted to make porn and have fun!

I made the first two videos on my own. Back then nobody wanted to help me. They were too scared. It was difficult because I was creating a space for people that had never been acknowledged. So I went on YouTube to learn how to use a camera and shot it myself. It blew the porn world away, but I got way more negative reactions than positive ones. People were angry because I was talking about being a man without having a penis. I got death threats from cisgendered men, the transgendered community was upset and gay men were confused because they felt attracted to me even though I had a vagina.

If there’s one thing I have it is determination. That initial pushback made me want to realize it even more. I got signed by a company and made three movies - each targeting a different audience because I didn't know who my customer base was - one with me and all women, one with me and all men and one where I had sex with both men and women. The all-male video took off. The reaction of the gay community was amazing. If it hadn't been for gay men I wouldn't be here now. They are the ones who really helped me. They weren't just understanding, but they also blocked the hate in a lot of ways."

fisting, electro and CBT, or just messing around in leather or rubber. My interests tick a lot of boxes basically. Kink for me is more of a mindset than an activity. If you meet a guy and you notice he's spending a lot of time looking at your feet or you discover he likes being on his knees a lot, that automatically leads to a boner for me."

Trans people have become much more visible this decade. You yourself identify as a transsexual man and not as transgender. Could you explain to our readers what the difference is in your opinion?

"For me it's two different identities. I'm going use myself as an example. I am a transsexual man. I was born female, I have 'gender dysphoria' and I have had an actual sex change to become a man through the use of medical technology and testosterone injections. Transitioning is a life changing experience and I can never go back to being a woman. The term 'transgender' is an umbrella term for all kinds of different 'gender identities' such as gender non-conforming, trans masculine and so on. It's important for me to explain this to the readers, because there are people out there who are confused about their own identity. They need to understand the difference between living masculine through your appearance - for example by wearing clothing meant for men - and having a full sex change. You can compare the term 'transgender' with the term 'gay'. Not everyone is gay. There are lesbians, bisexuals, queers, etcetera. They are not all the same. Not all transgender people are the same either. I have nothing in common with a gender non-conforming person because I live my life as a man and I have a medical condition that almost made me kill myself. Some transgender people have that same medical condition, others do not."

Let's get back to the reason why you are in Amsterdam. You are not just a pioneer in the porn industry but also in the field of female to male sex toys. What can you tell us about the new line of FTM toys that you created and developed

"The first toy I came up with was the Buck-Off. I created it because I felt the desire to masturbate - it's one of the best things in the world (he adds enthusiastically) - and there were no toys for transsexual men out there. So I made my own by reshaping another sex toy. I must have gone to 500 sex toy companies in five years and nobody saw the future in it. They didn't understand that trans men are here sexually. And then I went to Perfect Fit and Steve Callow, the CEO, thought it was a no-brainer. They made the design better, we went into production within six months and the Buck-Off became the fastest selling toy in the porn industry. I cried when I used it for the first time (Buck laughs at this). Yes, I cried when I was masturbating. How do I explain this? I had thought of this thing for such a long time and suddenly it was a reality. I knew it was going to change the lives of so many transsexual men out there. Walk into a sex shop and there are toys for men, women, gay guys, lesbians, anyone. You have to understand that that's a privilege. Never ever in the history of the world there existed a product like this one for transsexual men. It's a huge thing that we have one now and that it is available in shops worldwide. It validates our sexual needs. That's what made me so emotional."

So how does the Buck-Off work? How do you...Buck-Off?

“The Buck-Off is for transsexual men with an enlarged vagina. When you transition your clitoris generally grows from the use of testosterone and it can grow up to four inches. You could compare the Buck-Off with a regular masturbation sleeve, but shorter and wider. The toy is actually moulded for my genitals. There’s a hole in it, which you place over your clitoris, and the toy will suck on tight when you start stroking. It actually looks like you are jacking-off when you use it. The Buck-Off allows you to play with yourself and masturbate without having to touch your genitals, which is perfect for guys that don’t feel comfortable with their own body. We created the Kiss-X for trans men that don’t use testosterone. It’s a smaller version of the Buck-Off and it allows you to jack-off even when you don’t have an enlarged clitoris. It’s also great for gender non-conforming and gender fluid people. There are even cisgendered women that use the Kiss-X to get off. I think it’s incredible that they have started playing with our toys, since it used to be the other way around!”

You once said that the best thing you ever did was to ‘connect to your vagina’. What did you mean by that?

“From an early age on people tell you it’s your genitals that make you a man or a woman; that your genitals decide your gender. Because of that I had to learn to connect to my vagina. If I hadn’t done that I might have killed myself. I connected with my genitals through sex and specifically through masturbation. I’m convinced that other transsexual men will have a better understanding of their bodies if they try to make that connection as well. That’s one of the reasons why I created the Buck-Off: to help others to connect to their bodies through sex. I can honestly say that masturbation changed my life for the better!”

Do a lot of transsexual men have difficulty with sex or sexuality?

“Yes, oh my god! (he says with conviction in his voice) It’s because they have been brainwashed. I’m not brainwashed anymore. It’s like being in a cult. Once you get out, you need to find a way to get rid of all the lies you’ve been fed. When we grow up people tell us women have vaginas and men have dicks. Having a cock makes a man a man. So all of these transsexual men are looking to have a penis operation. Take it from me: you don’t have to do that. I live my life fully male. Getting a penis should only be an option. It shouldn’t be mandatory. My sex life is great. I go to the gym, shower naked there and nobody ever bothers me. It’s because I’m confident with myself. I don’t care what other people think. You don’t need other people’s validation as long as you connect to yourself. I think that’s the message people need to understand. Just because you like getting fucked in the ass, doesn’t make you gay. Just because you are in touch with your vagina, doesn’t make you a woman. Just because you have a penis, doesn’t mean you are man!”

A dark, narrow alleyway in Berlin, possibly a hidden spot for cruising. The walls are covered in graffiti, including the word "CAST" in white. The floor is dirt and debris. A doorway at the end of the alley is illuminated from within, showing some greenery. The overall atmosphere is gritty and mysterious.

THE TOTAL PAC

A Liquid Kiddy party report

• Written by: Marco Hohl •

HEY HELLO DEAR READERS AND WELCOME TO MARCO'S BRAIN. LET'S LISTEN TO THE INTERNAL DIALOGUE GOING ON, SHALL WE?

"Hey there. Yes, I know you. Give me your face and let me kiss it. And I know you as well. Oooh, you smell nice. Grope his shoulder. Groping it. Squeezing it. Niiiiiice. You get one on the lips for that. Was that too long? Let's walk baby and try to ignore all the people. Nope, you're not ignoring anyone. Oh. Hi there! Kiss on the cheek. Another one. And another one. A little bit too wet. Yuk. Let's walk. Let's walk. Oooh, look at him. He looks amazing. And he's coming over. Wooohoo. There is a god. Thanks, that's so nice of you! You too! Smooch, smooch, smooch. Fuck, I need a drink. Let's walk babe, go, go, goooooo! Oh no, not him. Shit, Houston we have eye contact. Hiiiiiiii! Why do I suddenly sound like Alaska Thunderfuck?"

RAGE

You know you are at a party in your hometown when you are non-stop kissing everyone and trying to avoid them at the same time the first 45 minutes after entering the venue. And all that kissing wouldn't be such a bad thing when you live in Germany, France or even Belgium, but in The Netherlands we kiss THREE times per person. It's insane. Super tiring. And it confuses the hell out of the expats who presume we are distant and cold. But I'm starting to go off topic. Where was I? Oh yeah! Liquid Kiddy!

It's the beginning of December and this month I'm channelling midlife crisis realness by going to a ridiculous amount of parties in Amsterdam and Berlin. Funhouse, Revolver, Kalinichta, Bear Necessity, the Black Madonna at De School, the Berghain anniversary party (#sendfreetickets) and today it's time for the third edition of Liquid Kiddy at Warehouse Elementenstraat in Amsterdam.

Liquid Kiddy is basically three parties in one – you could even call it an indoor festival. The line up changes every time and tonight it's a combination of Eliad Cohen's world famous PAPA PARTY, Mister B's Damage and Liquid Kiddy's own Totally. It's a beautiful mix of circuit, fetish and urban. What I love about this mini festival is that everyone is constantly smiling. There are good vibes all around and the audience seems to be genuinely happy. Liquid Kiddy is a who's who of Amsterdam's queer nightlife. There are leather daddies, drag queens and club kids mingling and people keep hopping from room to room to dance to other tunes. Oh, and this might also be an important piece of information for some, there are a lot of hot guys and girls running around (#alotalot).

At the beginning of the evening I'm mostly hanging out around the Totally stage, where Mermaids Mansion - one of Amsterdam's most famous and talented drag houses - is performing and looking fabulous. There are stunning queens of all genders and sizes strutting down the runway in tight fitting latex gear, while DJ duo The G-Team (#darlingpeter) is playing a sickening rollercoaster ride of pop hits.

Over in the main hall, where PAPA PARTY is in control, more and more t-shirts are disappearing by the minute. The music is pumping. The laser lights are filling up the room. The go-go's are drenched in sweat. And Eliad Cohen is talking about something or the other, but I don't think anyone is listening. We are all just admiring his abs, his hairy chest and those pearly white teeth. And there's a singer next to him as well. At least I think there is (#stilllookingathisabs). All in all it's breathtaking... the show I mean.

There's also some confusion at one point. One of the drag queens in charge of the water closets hands me a small white package and tells me to use it wisely. She stares at me intently and then vanishes in the fog (that last bit I made up for dramatic effect). I open the package in the dimly lit smokers room and pull out something that looks like an alcohol test. It's a see-through plastic sachet that reminds me of a Capri Sun drink with some printing on it and a blue plastic nozzle attached. I blow into the nozzle once and the bag is immediately full. Is it a balloon? None of my friends have a clue. Back in the toilets I spot the drag queen and she tells me it's a disposable douche courtesy of Mister B; apparently she thought I could use one. You gotta love our marketing department; they are prepared for anything LOL (#productplacement #availableonlinenow).

The rest of my night mostly takes place in Mister B's Damage room, with sets by world-renowned DJ Chris Bekker from Berlin, our amazing resident DJ William Sizen Bell from Manchester and Amsterdam's own DJ BE-Rik. The music is thick and seductive. There are go-go performances by some of our favourite models and dancers including Dennixx, Logan Moore and Nereida DeadlySin. Some of my friends and acquaintances are also putting on a show. There are multiple couples present, but no one seems to be actually kissing their significant other. They are mostly kissing other people's significant others. It's messy and I love it (#sharingiscaring). I keep dancing until 8 am when the party ends and I'm already looking forward to the next one, because tonight was simply purrrrrfect!

Q&A

Crisco

• Written by: Gijs van der Zwaag •

Everyone knows, has heard of, seen, used or 'felt' Crisco at some point in his fetish life. This product, is both a (fisting) staple as it might be controversial. Why controversial? For and by whom and for what use was it made originally? And how did it come to be the staple it is nowadays? Time for a little Q & A to get to know this product a bit better.

ANY QUESTIONS OR REMARKS? RECIPE TIPS? SHARING IS CARING!

more info: www.crisco.com/products/vegetable-shortening/all-vegetable-shortening

Available at Mister B

What is Crisco?

Crisco is a vegetable 'shortening'. Shortening is another word for (concentrated) margarine.

'Regular' use requires it to be diluted with a couple of tablespoons of water to reach margarine-like consistency and properties. It is very fatty and therefore suitable for a lot of purposes that involves greasing something up for optimal result. From here your dirty mind could do the rest but please do continue reading :)

How did Crisco 'rise to fame' ?

Well, as most discoveries in life, it has been a matter of a 'happy accident'. Already from the time Crisco came to be, early 1910s, someone must have run out of the regular lubricant they used, had a go at it with this seemingly multi-purpose product, found it (more than?) adequate, and the 'gospel' got spread throughout the decades; by the 1970s, Crisco cans had become a huge symbol for gay sex. It is cheap as chips compared to other, more 'regular' lubricants, so it is a typical case of 'more for less', and who doesn't love a good bargain? The fact that it is a very long-lasting lubricant and it is easy to scoop up a lot in one go, renders it a very suitable product for anything involving heavy hand work. All-in-all, it seems like the perfect product for fisting. And then to think it's originally produced by a Mormon company...not the most gay-friendly, and therefore no surprise that this company won't supply Mister B...directly.

Is Crisco good for you?

Now we get to the perhaps most controversial part about Crisco: no, it's not that good for you. Why? More so than the fact it has no problem destroying latex condom and gloves: it 'sticks', in the broadest sense of the word. Even though it contains less than 1 gram trans-fat per can, our body has a lot of difficulties breaking it down, let alone when you apply it deep into your guts from the rear end, with no saliva, stomach acids or overall digestive tract to take care of it, like with all other things you put in your mouth and swallow. Furthermore it doesn't really contain valuable nutrients for your body that could compensate for this 'disadvantage'.

However, it goes without saying that the possible damage it does depends on what else you put in your body, ergo: your overall physical health and dietary habits. Since this section is about food, and we secretly all like to indulge from time to time into something that just feels, looks, and tastes good (in preparations that is), without having to worry, you'll find some culinary info below.

So what can we do with Crisco in the kitchen?

As it has been saying on its packaging for the longest of time: 'it is perfect for a good pie crust', but it's also very suitable to create all sorts of cookies and biscuits with that nice brittle, shortbread-like consistency and crunch.

Please do try out the recipes posted on our Facebook page. They are just sinfully delicious, and relatively easy to make.

Furthermore, and unlike butter & dairy products, you can keep Crisco for quite some time. However: the moment you start using your hands to serve other orifices than your mouth, hygiene is at stake and the product won't last by far as long!

Fun fact: substitute some of the butter in the recipe by Crisco, and you will have an even more stable and manageable butter cream, absolutely perfect for your hysterical cake decorations! A recipe for this one you can also find on our Facebook page.

And finally: is Crisco vegan?

Relevant question? Definitely for those who live a vegan lifestyle simply because they want to, but of course also for those who just want to follow or engage in the hype and discussions that are going on around veganism at the moment. The answer is: yaaaaa! Crisco is like vegan lard: more 'stable' for most baking endeavors than coconut oil – one of the most common vegan substitutes for butter and dairy – and therefore a better guarantee for success when substituting, or even as a substitute for butter or lard itself. (Mind you: pan heating is limited and Crisco will catch fire when overheated...#justsaying)

However, if you wonder about Crisco being 'vegan' as in: putting less pressure on Mommy Earth Dearest by not harming any animals? Meh: it does mainly contain Soybean Oil and Palm Oil, so if you're adamant about saving the rain forest, you might want to reconsider. This then also goes for the 'non-food' section, in other words: when you (want to) put it up your precious asshole. After all, there are plenty of alternatives for that: Elbow Grease, Slam Dunk, Boy Butter & Mister B CREAM, but also the Mister B FIST range, a good thick jelly which works fab for fisting, and is easy to get out of clothes, sheets...and orifices. For baking however, please do stick to Crisco, as it will stick to you ;-)

THE E-STIM 2B CONNECT

• Written by: Chris Vincent •

It can't really shock anyone that I get to review another set of products for this issue. This specific product, on the other hand, technically can.

I hate to say that I hate to be the disclaimer girl, so I won't. I do, however, want to tell you that this review is not a very technical one, as much as it is my very sincere first go at any type of electro play, and therefore is written for an audience that still yet has to dive in to the world of AC/DC stimulation.

This review will focus on two aspects of the box, namely controlling it myself and letting others be in control.

Being the first time trying E-Stim, as it were, of course I felt like progressing slowly, and in my own time and space. Here's what I could make out of the box on a first glance with no prior knowledge:

It has two channels, meaning it can support more than one single toy. It has different settings that produces different patterns of stimulation, and within these settings, adjustments can be made from the user. There's also a microphone and an option to connect to an audio player.

So far, nothing seems like rocket science.

Speaking of rockets, the supplied butt plug (that is sold separately) was insultingly small for my standards. Little did I know; this would prove to be irrelevant.

Size queens will be size queens, but this queen would be screaming soon enough. As a standard in the box, one also receives cock straps and electro pads. For those of you who don't know what those are, think of the small patches that are put on your chest by doctors' to measure your EKG.

A common rule of thumb is "write what you know", and since I am all about anal pleasure, of course I went for the aforementioned butt-rocket, from the use of which all of the following experiences are written.

Now, I don't know about you, but I'm not a great fan of manuals. I approach technology with fearless 'trial-and-error' and a 'Masc4Machinery' kind of attitude (Except with cars. If they break down I become a crossing between a 50's housewife and a damsel in distress.)

So with 17(!) different presets, I was buckling up for a ride. I connected the butt plug with the control unit and my first thought was how counter intuitive it was for me to shove something in my derriere that had wires in it. But even at 31, I've tried my share of oddities in life, and lubed up with no hesitation. First note to self: warm up a metal butt plug before inserting it. (Other note to self: What is the anatomical opposite of a brain freeze?)

The moment of truth: I turned on the unit. The first available setting is “pulse”, which sounded both familiar and logical, as I could monitor the beat of the pulse on the unit; that was currently ready to amp the intensity from zero. With a very careful turn on the knob, I got to about 25% before feeling a pulsating tingle, and all of a sudden I realized that indeed: Size won't matter right now. The small electrical pulse would send a very new tingling sensation to the surrounding area of the plug, and more importantly - to the prostate. A smile grew on my face simultaneously with the ascending intensity of the setting, and surprised “oh's” turned into moans and exhaled grunts of pleasure and disbelief. Very soon, I made it to 100% intensity, safe and sound. And what a sound! Eager for more, I selected a new setting (and the intensity automatically drops to 0 while doing this.)

As mentioned before, there are 17 different kinds of presets, all of which have adjustable settings within them, making the unit extremely customizable to anyone's preference. I decided to just go by standard settings all the way through. Settings like “throb”, “waterfall”, “thrust” and “milk” were the favorites and do exactly what they sound like they do: different small variations that could do a lot of difference in terms of sensation, which so far was very controlled.

As done before in my product testing, I take (fair) use of scruffy manservants to replicate the potential sexual behavior in an authentic way, and knowing that sex and stimulation is all in the brain, I found it more curious to have someone else be in control of the intensity.

HOW TO USE

E-Stim Connect is a brand new creation from E-Stim Systems that allows you quick, easy and secure remote control of an E-Stim Systems 2B over the Internet via a simple program and a web browser.

Plug a 2B into a PC or Mac, run E-Stim Connect and then share the secure and unique connection key with your partner - anywhere in the world. As long as they have a device with Internet access, from a PC to a mobile phone, iPhone to Android, Tablet to Mac, they can control your 2B from the comfort of their device, anywhere, anytime.

Connect - Share - Play

Looking for the Hardware needed? All you need is a PC/Mac, an E-Stim Systems 2B, a Digital Link Interface and the E-Stim Connect software. You also need to have an active internet connection. All your partner needs is a device with Internet access running a web browser, and your connection key.

Looking to install the software? Or Looking for instructions on how to run E-Stim Connect?

Go to www.e-stim.co.uk

Have a key and want to play?

Then visit the server <https://e-stim.online/connect>

So for the next chapter of this review, I left the control unit in the eager hands of someone else, praying to my maker that my cause of death would be anything than this.

For me, this is definitely how the magic happens. Not knowing what setting that was coming, while at the same time not knowing how the intensity would escalate, made the whole experience tremendously pleasurable. Literally. I shivered, moaned, grunted, jerked, twitched and just gave in to this overpowering feeling. Again; literally.

I later on tried the microphone, audio and supposedly Bluetooth function, but I have to admit that they did not really make sense to me within the limits of patience that I have available for gadgets like this. This does not mean they are useless features what so ever, but it just supports the notion that every single setting has an abundance of options within itself to make the experience even more unique and enjoyable. After having almost electrocuted my sphincter to Bohemian Rhapsody, I concluded that these three settings, however, demand a bit more preparation time and a thorough understanding before (careful) implementation.

Overall, as a newbie, I found the 2B very exciting with its palette of options to dig in to new sensations, and although not being too intuitive for newcomers, with a bit of learning and patience, this E-Stim control unit most definitely is worth trying out if you are curious about electro play.

I would personally suggest trying this with someone who knows the system on beforehand, so you feel safe and get the best pleasure out of it.

THE PLUS ONE

• Written by: Marco Hohl •

“So are you guys in a three way relationship?” Asked the ex-boyfriend of our bestie who just moved to Berlin.

“Kinda, something like that.” I muttered smiling after two seconds of silence.

Our bestie burst out laughing. “Oh, shit, I didn’t realise hahaha. Sorry guys!”

It’s the beginning of December and my boyfriend and I are hanging out in our best friend’s apartment in Neuköln. We are there to visit him, see his new stomping grounds, dance like maniacs at KitKatClub and Berghain and introduce him to our uhm ‘new roommate’. Our bestie’s ex-boy friend is there to hand in his keys and ask the right questions apparently.

Being gay basically means you don’t fit the mould. Of course you are free to emulate a heterosexual lifestyle. Do the whole monogamy shtick. Adopt some kids. Yada, yada, yada and so on. For me this does not work. In my opinion male-male relationships are fundamentally different from male-female relationships and I think that’s a glorious thing!

Look at the way we form friendships with other gay men for example. We usually fuck our way to a friendship. And sometimes we keep sticking it to one another and become friends with benefits. You might have heard of ‘six degrees of separation’. According to this theory everyone is connected to any other living person through a maximum of six people. This does not apply to the gay bubble I’m currently living in. Usually I’m connected to any other gay man I have ‘the hots’ for through one or two fucks and sometimes you can even literally find these men in the same bed during a holiday in Sitges. Sorry not sorry for #bragging LOL.

Relationships are also less defined at times. Look at what happened to my boyfriend and me last year. A ‘friend of ours’ from Washington DC (yes, we fucked) connected us to a ‘friend of his’ from Buenos Aires (yes, they fucked as well) who was moving to Amsterdam for a couple of months and asked us to show him around town and take him under our wings (which I translated into ‘go ahead and fuck’). So we took care of him (we fucked) and started living together in our small studio apartment. And somehow this has turned into an undefined, labelless affair between the three of us, which is fun, nice and feels pretty good.

We live in a society with a lot of fixed ideas, but that doesn’t mean there’s no room to move into a different direction every once in a while. As gay men we should not just accept but embrace our otherness especially in a world where homophobia seems to be on the rise again. When you are confronted with hate on a daily basis, whether it’s on the news or in real life, love is the best counter weight. Just make sure to be open to it when it’s offered to you, even if there’s a plus one involved!

MISTER PRIDE AMBASADOR 2019

*An interview with pride ambassador
Raymond Timmer*

• Written by: Marco Hohl •

Pride Amsterdam loves serving face! Since 2013 the event has put a spotlight on activists, artists, politicians, drag queens, dj's and many more representing the Dutch LGBT community in all its beauty and diversity. These 'pride ambassadors' include Eurovision Song Contest winner Conchita Wurst, world famous trans model and activist Valentijn de Hingh and this year it will feature its first out and proud leather man Raymond Timmer (44).

Raymond, last time Wings spoke to you, you had just become Mister Leather Amsterdam 2017. What have you been up to since?

“Well, as I was also elected to be Mister Leather Europe in 2017, I visited leather events all over Europe - from Amsterdam to Zürich and from Helsinki to Milan. I organized leather get-togethers, drinks and charity events. I put a lot of time and effort into it. My boyfriend was Mister Leather Switzerland at the same time, so we travelled around his country as well. I wanted to become Mister Leather to infuse some more fun into our scene and to make our lifestyle more accessible, and it worked! I am super proud of the fact that men came up to me to ask advice about wearing leather or when they told me they had bought their first harness because of me. Many guys I talked to were afraid to wear leather gear. I had that as well in the beginning. I used to be very insecure about my body in the past – I mean I don't look like a bodybuilder. Nowadays I just own it.”

Your hard work didn't go unnoticed. Pride Amsterdam has asked you to become one of its faces this year. Why did you say 'yes' to becoming one of the pride ambassadors?

“First of all I was very surprised when they asked me, and I felt really honoured! So saying 'no' was not an option. Aside from the very prominent Mister B boat during the Canal Parade, leather men aren't that visible during pride. As an ambassador I can be a voice for our community. I can show the outside world who we are and what we are about. It's an opportunity to break taboos. Being an ambassador also gives me the chance to talk about subjects that are important to me and to our community like Hepatitis C – a disease that too little gay men know about. I hope I can raise money and awareness for good causes as well, like Rainbow Railroad. I'm really excited to meet our new mayor and to talk to politicians about our rights. I'm also looking forward to standing on the first boat of the Canal Parade with all my fellow ambassadors.”

How can the fetish community be better represented during Pride Amsterdam?

“Simply by organizing more events. Last year for example the outdoor fetish festival Crash was added to the program, with DJs, kinky shows and go-go boys and girls. It took place on Beursplein, which is in the heart of the city centre, located between central station and Dam Square. It was a fantastic event. Leather Friends Netherlands supported it. The atmosphere was great. I walked there after the Canal Parade had finished wearing only a leather apron with my ass cheeks exposed and for everyone to see. Most reactions were nice – even though some women kept touching my behind, which did little for me hahaha. People made an effort and wore gear especially for this party in the open air, during daylight, in the centre of the city. I was afraid they wouldn't do that, but the audience pleasantly surprised me. I hope there will be more initiatives like this in 2019.”

Your motto on Facebook is 'stop being who you were and become who you are'. How does this apply to you?

“I posted that quote quite some time ago, but it still fits. From 2008 on my life had a lot of ups and downs. I had to quit my job because of HIV complications – I got sick – and at the same time I struggled with my coming out, which was pretty late. It was time to stop being who I was or who I wanted to be and become the person that I actually am. That quote perfectly captured what I was going through.”

It seems to me you have fully embraced who you are!

“Yes I have! And with a title like Mister Leather Europe I put myself out there even more. Friends and family asked me if I would be strong enough to do this. They advised me to hide my Facebook page because my colleagues at work might find out. But I'm actually fine with that. If they have questions I will be happy to answer them and explain. Being in this scene has no influence on my work whatsoever. I think it's important to be visible and I want to show others you shouldn't be afraid. Unfortunately there are still a lot of men who are scared to tell the world they are gay – especially when they have a kink. I even explained it to my parents at one point. For a time they didn't like it at all, but these days my mother follows all my adventures on social media and she likes everything she sees.”

As does mine hahaha. Hey mom hey! I sent her a picture when I was on the Mister B boat during the Canal Parade wearing a rubber jock and she told me it looked 'nice and breezy' especially with the 'warm summer weather' we were having.

“But my parents and I don't discuss all of the ins and outs. The sexual side of leather is a topic we don't talk about. And I don't think we need to. I mean I also don't go into their sex life, because I really don't want to know either hahaha.”

As a titleholder you're used to wearing a sash. Is Pride Amsterdam providing you one for your role as 'Mister Pride Ambassador 2019'? It would be kinda appropriate don't you think?

“Not that I'm aware of, but maybe you can suggest it to them haha”

A large white letter 'A' is centered on a background of diagonal rainbow stripes. A red diagonal banner with white text is overlaid across the 'A'.

1. Ready - Wet Stuff Lubricant Capsules

This is a wicked little gadget for kinksters who are into sensory deprivation. The black lenses take away the eyesight of your sub - hence the name Pocket Darkroom. Last thing I heard is it's also fun to use in combination with earplugs. #whatnow #wherenow #whonow

5. Mister B Motor Boots

These boots look hot and taste delicious. Try them on in one of our stores or have a lick next time you see someone wearing them in public. #siryessir

MISTER RUBBER POLAND

• Written by: Chris Vincent •

The current Mister Rubber Poland uses the spotlight to organize fetish events and even started a psychotherapeutic initiative to improve the health of LGBTQ+ people in Poland. After a few months of getting acquainted, I finally caught him amidst his busy schedule for a chat about his activities.

Photography by Pawel Spychalski

I would say that fate has finally brought us together, however digitally. So close, yet so far. I can almost smell the rubber and sweat. Tell me... what should I call you?

Maybe we should wait for the right moment so that the smell of rubber has raised the blood pressure? Any juicy details we can always leave for later... So, for now we can use my name - it's Kamil.

Oh I'd gladly conduct this interview wearing rubber. (Mine has practical zippers). So, Kamil: you're the current Mister Rubber Poland. What made you sign up for the election?

I've always liked slippery and shiny materials, and I started with sports fetishes, e.g. sneakers and socks put together with shiny nylon. But when I first wore a latex suit, my first reaction was...let's say...very strong! That was 10 years ago. Since then I've met quite a few guys who are very much into it as well. After moving to Warsaw, I started to help organizing fetish events for guys; including the first Polish Mr Rubber elections.

Later on I attended my first Folsom, then Darklands. And I thought by myself that I could show others what I was doing for the fetish community. I always have a lot of ideas, and that attributed to me getting this sash around my neck. Now, I'm further implementing my ideas, and trust me, there are plenty.

What kind of ideas?

Before the May elections, I often heard that nothing was happening in the Polish fetish scene. So I set a goal to change that, and for a few months now I've been organizing a monthly fetish event for guys called "U-boot". We meet in one of the clubs of Warsaw every last Friday of the month.

I always invite international and local guests who are recognized in the fetish scene. Amongst those I can mention for example: Mr. Rubber Europe 2018, Mr. Gay Poland 2018 and Mr. Rubber Spain 2017.

To my surprise, quite quickly more and more guys visit the party every month, that's why, together with my friends, I am planning to organize a big event next year, called Warsaw Fetish Weekend. This will take place on 24-26th of May, but I can't talk about that too much yet, so stay tuned.

I also focus a lot on health, so after the election I started to coordinate a psychotherapeutic support program for LGBTQ+ people called "The Nest", which primarily focuses on (but is not limited to) guys with fetishes. It's been a year since the start of this program and I'm happy to say it has proven to be effective.

I'm glad that The Nest has also been noticed abroad, including by Mister B and Mr. Rubber San Francisco, who have supported the program from the beginning. In the following months I am planning to develop The Nest even further.

In addition, recently I have also been taking part in a charity auction organized by the Refform Foundation, auctioning out fetish calendars. It will feature pictures of recognizable guys from the scene. (You can have a picture of me hanging on your wall this May!)

This auction will help organize and fund educational workshops and integration meetings. It will also support people who are subject to exclusion and discrimination, and will help generate awareness regarding health issues - for example The Nest program.

If you want to engage with Kamil, feel free to drop him a message on instagram **@rubber\_\_master**

ELONG

WIDE BASE NIPSUCKER BY HÜNKYJUNK

ELONG nip-suckers work, they really do suck...and look so cool. They are slightly curved but not tapered, these will suck any size nip and are deep enough and big enough for small to medium piercings.

These suckers stay on, the base flares out for more contact with skin, they will seal to small or larger--even furry chests.

What give these powerful suction are the four springy rings that make the nipple-tube spring open without collapsing like old snakebite suckers, we made the walls thinner to allow for more pump and even larger sucked nips.

LOCKDOWN

CAGE CHASTITY BY HÜNKYJUNK

Chastity is Hüj weather you lock your junk up or submit and let someone else control your urges. LOCKDOWN is hünkyjunk's meaty-thick, weighty chastity toy. The rubbery-soft silicone blend is stretchy but restrictive...erectons are difficult in LOCKDOWN.

There's more room inside: LOCKDOWN stretches to fit any size guy, even the Hüj ones. The sling style base keeps it on--the ball-ring is more substantial so it stays in place.

More "head" room will drive you nuts—more room means the head gets more sensation, more friction-frustration, but you can't do anything about it. The curve in the shaft makes erections less comfortable, but keeps chastity possible under clothing, 24/7, with more bulge but still discrete.

LOCKDOWN does give a frustrating meaty bulge while it locks down your cravings and ability to use your dick...one of the few toys hünkyjunk designed to deny your pleasure.

SWELL

ADJUST-FIT COCKSHEATH BY HÜNKYJUNK

SWELL makes sex so much better...for both partners! SWELL is a cock sheath that jacks off the guy while he pumps...the inside shaft is loaded with nubs and more "headroom" than any other sheath, more room to feel the stroking, the rubbery soft silicone blend stretches and strokes.

SWELL gives as well, the ultra-smooth shaft feels slick and velvety, there's no texture, it's not veiny, there's no flared head, it's just a fluid polished thick pole. But...push all the way to the base and SWELL swells much thicker, the base is covered with raised rubbery nubs. Feels amazing!

It's all about the base: it's wider than the shaft, thicker and wider to rub and stretch with that extra deep thrust when you want to thrust—the contrast of the smooth shaft to the thick textured base will cause moans. Extra soft plus silicone™ TPR/silicone blend with stretch to fit any size guy, SWELL adds girth and length to you...and makes the base of your shaft extra meaty and thick.

SLINGSHOT

3-RING TEARDROP SLING BY HÜNKYJUNK

SLINGSHOT is the best fitting sling we have ever made: it's a hybrid cocksling with a teardrop base...this sling fits because it is shaped to fit you. Each opening is the right size to form ergonomically your shaft and balls, the teardrop shaped base comfortably wraps around the top of your ballsack and tapers back to snugly fit between the legs with a curve up so it rubs your taint.

The ring at the front has a slight dip at the base, this reduces pressure on the sensitive underside of your cock. The side cutouts reduce bulk and weight so this sling will fit all sizes and feel like it's connected in a way no other sling can.

Part of what makes this feel so good is our plus+silicone™ TPR/silicone blend, it feels smooth and warm like silicone + strong and stretchy like pure TPR.

Hünkyjunk SLINGSHOT for Hüy bulges!

DUO

LINKED COCK/BALL RINGS BY HÜNKYJUNK

DUO rings are a hünkyjunk original--nobody's done this before! We made a chain-link style set of interlocked rings designed to wrap around your cock/balls, for "hunkier junk"! These super-rubbery silicone blend rings are smooth and soft when used as a double c-ring without being too tight. We made 'em feel right!

Or...flip one ring down to grip your ballsack...it's all connected so any movement transmits from the base of your shaft to your ballsack.

Hünkyjunk's goal is to innovate, cool toys that fit and feel amazing, DUO is pure hünkyjunk, its Hüy!

CONNECT

C-RING/BALLTUGGER BY HÜNKYJUNK

Cockrings are a blast for long JO play—pulling your balls or tugging your sack can really make stroking feel amazing...CONNECT is a cockring that does the tugging for you.

CONNECT is a cockring with an attached sack ring for a guy's balls--the cockring is super rubbery and can be worn for long play and the ball-ring is the right size to tug most any size sack without digging into you. The 2 rings are attached with a wide connector that acts like a rubbery flexing spring, it's strong enough for plenty of pull, but stretchy enough for a lot of tug.

Wear CONNECT for play or for a bigger ballsier bulge.

Hünkyjunk makes toys that work. There are many c-ring/ball-ring combos but none connect the way ours does with rings designed to fit and feel right with a really good tug!

PORN-PANIC

• Written by: Thijs Fransen •

It is the weekend and I am on nurse duty at the emergency room of a large Amsterdam hospital. From my work spot I see the receptionist talking to a guy that is clearly panicking. She nods a bit every now and then from behind the window with the talking holes, writes down his personal data and completes his registration. "Sexual accident", as it appears on my screen, and moments later I meet him in one of the treatment rooms.

Snapped condom? Any condom used at all? Taken any drugs? Did he come inside you? Spotted blood or sperm? Is he HIV positive? Are you HIV positive yourself? In only a few minutes time, I fire away at him with all these and other direct questions. To most of them he doesn't know or can't give an answer, all the while looking to the floor, anxious and defeated. It was in a sauna, the night before, after a party. He had done some drugs, went along with two nice guys and had sex with them, and with a lot more guys after that. He tells that the whole thing had felt like one huge, hot, sleazy sex dream, fuelled by alcohol and drugs. That morning he had arrived home at a somewhat decent hour and had fallen asleep in his own bed but had woken up in a state of panic and afraid of having contracted HIV. Bit by bit I try to get some more details about the night before, but without result: the initially seemingly horny nocturnal adventure has turned into a bitter, fear- and guilt-ridden hangover. Gradually the guy bends our conversation towards Post Exposure Prophylaxis (PEP). He knows it's available and I know that with this incomplete story he most definitely has an indication to start a cure. However, as justly indicated it may be, sending him home with a heavy cure of HIV inhibitors like this does feel wry to me: had he had a bit more certainty about some facets of his sexual escapade, he perhaps could have left the hospital with just a word of comfort from our part.

The above example is one of many. Especially during or right after the weekend, the emergency room is visited a lot by boys and men with "PEP check" as the main help topic. It is noticeable that despite of the possibility to take PREP (Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis), sexual education for men who have sex with men, and the free availability condoms and lube in sauna's and darkrooms, a lot of sexual risks are still being taken, consciously or not. These risks mostly go hand in hand with the use of alcohol and drugs during those sex sessions, and these mostly being with several men with whom it's very hard to get into contact with afterwards. The fact that after the deed(s) these sex partners are often inapproachable can mostly be 'traced' back to the anonymous character of the sex locations where the action took place.

Nowadays I visit a sauna from time to time, and before I met my current partner, I was quite the insatiable party animal myself, in the sexual realm no less than other(s).

I therefore know like no other about what a buzz kill it can be in the heat of the moment when bringing up things like: HIV status, condom use, other venereal diseases, etc. However, ending up in the emergency room the next day, sweaty palms and all, isn't something you (should) want either, right?

In conclusion: communication before sex is important, especially when you know beforehand that you won't speak to those sex partners again afterwards. This chat doesn't have to take long at all, and very often gives you quite a bit of valuable information. Should you then end up at an emergency room or the STD clinic for a PEP-check and have such knowledge in the bag, it can very well be that the risk you ran is will be assessed insufficient for you to have to start a PEP cure. You then being sent home without a PEP prescription, basically means that your sexual activities were 'safe' enough and that the risk of you having contracted HIV is negligibly small, or next to none. Mind you: most of the PEP cures that are prescribed nowadays, are done so solely due to insufficient info about the situation at hand or the sex partner(s) involved, rendering it an unnecessary burden to your body, simply because a PEP cure is heavy enough as it is!

It would be wise to make an assessment in advance of the risks you will/might be taking. When you know you'll be using alcohol and/or drugs you could make a deal with yourself to, for instance, always use a condom when fucking and/or not to get any sperm in your mouth. Also, when visiting an anonymous sex location, it is very wise to make such agreements with yourself, if only to prevent a sour aftertaste in hindsight. When visiting sex parties at someone's home with known or new partners, the following things really do matter:

- Make sure your sex partners are traceable (get phone numbers, profile details etc.)
- Ask all those involved who uses PREP when deciding to fuck without condoms. Mind you: you can NEVER be 100% sure whether the PREP has been used properly. Always let your own common sense be your guide!
- PREP is meant to protect YOU against a possible HIV contraction. Always use yourself as base and only fuck without condoms if YOU have taken PREP in the right way
- Be aware STD's other than HIV, like Hepatitis-C, Syphilis, Gonorrhoea, etc. PREP does NOT protect against these!
- In case of regularly changing sex partners, have yourself tested every 3 months (also when using condoms)
- Discuss your do's and don'ts and be alert they're respected by your sex partners (as you respect theirs)

Did you have a 'sexual accident' despite of all your good intentions and above advice? Make sure you find your way to an emergency room or an STD clinic well within the 72 hours after the accident happened, preferably with as many details as possible.

We are here for you!

THEY FOUND LOVE IN A HOPELESS PLACE: IN A DARKROOM AT LA DEMENCE. TODAY, THE POWER CAM-PERFORMER DUO MAKE A LIVING FROM CAM SHOWS AND VIDEOS THAT ARE POPULAR WORLD WIDE.

I decided to visit the lovely couple in their beautiful home in the Portuguese mountains, a half hour drive from Porto. I was curious about them, as I know a lot of sex workers doing either escort, porn, or both - but never have I actually met anyone who could live off of cam shows. For me, it's exhausting to think about: douching as the first thing when you wake up, having sex on camera 2-4 times a day on top of private chats, phone calls and texts/sexts. This is all, of course, next to daily trivial errands, or walking their three dogs and visiting family next to maintaining a social life.

HOW DO THEY MANAGE?

During my three-day stay with them, I had the privilege of becoming, dare I say, intimate with the couple and their daily routines.

As they have paying viewers from all across the globe, they would have to be ready for work on very different hours of the day. More than being active online in a standard 9-5 schedule, they might have to start a show at 3 AM local time, and then later again at 7 AM, to make sure they're available for viewers following from South America or Australia (and anywhere in between). They introduced me to the online cam-community, and showed me, amongst other things, how cam-workers support each other by using the hashtag #CamFam (Cam Family) as a response against the somewhat dog-eat-dog world of online life. Some times during the day, either of them would excuse themselves and leave the room, as they had a "Prey" they needed to call, as they needed regular attention.

JUST ANOTHER DAY AT THE OFFICE.

And I encourage everyone who is curious about their work to check them out - and even give them a little hello, because they are, definitely, as sweet as they are sexy, and as cute as they are kinky.
